Delta Air Lines Partial Refund Policy in 2026: When You Can Get Back Part of Your Fare

Delta Air Lines does not offer partial refunds in the traditional sense — airline tickets are generally refunded in full or not at all, depending on fare type and cancellation reason. However, several real-world scenarios produce a partial cash or credit return: cancelling one leg of a multi-city itinerary, downgrading to a cheaper flight, partially used tickets when Delta Air Lines disrupts a connection, and unused baggage or seat fees. For help identifying which partial refund applies to your situation, call 1 (855) 234-9809 any time.

Why 'Partial Refund' Means Different Things at Delta Air Lines

The phrase 'partial refund' covers several distinct scenarios in Delta Air Lines's system, each governed by different rules. Most passengers use the term loosely to mean 'getting some money back' — but whether that happens, and in what form, depends entirely on which specific situation applies to their booking.

The most common partial refund scenarios at Delta Air Lines include: changing to a cheaper flight and receiving the fare difference as a eCredit, cancelling unused segments of a partially flown itinerary when Delta Air Lines disrupts a connection, receiving a refund on add-on fees like prepaid baggage or seat upgrades that were purchased separately from the base fare, and cancelling one traveler from a multi-passenger booking. Each of these is handled differently in Delta Air Lines's system, and knowing which one applies determines both the amount you recover and the channel you need to use. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 to identify which partial refund path applies to your specific booking.

The Five Scenarios Where Delta Air Lines Returns Part of Your Fare

Scenario 1 — Changing to a less expensive flight. When you change a non-refundable Main Cabin or above ticket to a cheaper flight on Delta Air Lines, the fare difference is returned as a eCredit — not cash. The eCredit equals the exact dollar difference between your original fare and the new fare and can be applied to any future Delta Air Lines booking. If you hold a refundable ticket, the fare difference returns as cash to your original payment method.

Scenario 2 — Unused segments after a Delta Air Lines-disrupted connection. If Delta Air Lines disrupts your connection and you choose not to continue traveling on the alternative itinerary, you are entitled to a refund on all unflown segments — not just the disrupted leg. For example, if your outbound connected through Atlanta and the Atlanta-to-destination leg was cancelled by Delta Air Lines, you can request a refund on the unused Atlanta segment even though you already flew the first leg. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 to initiate a partial refund on unused segments after a disruption.

Scenario 3 — Refund of separately purchased add-on fees. Fees paid separately from the base airfare — prepaid checked baggage, seat upgrade fees, priority boarding fees — may be refundable when the associated flight is cancelled by Delta Air Lines or when you cancel a refundable ticket. These fees are tracked separately in Delta Air Lines's system and must be claimed separately from the base fare refund. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 to confirm which add-on fees are refundable on your specific booking.

Scenario 4 — Cancelling one passenger from a multi-passenger booking. If you booked multiple passengers on the same reservation and one passenger can no longer travel, that individual's ticket can be cancelled independently of the rest of the group. The cancelled passenger's fare is returned as a eCredit for non-refundable tickets or as cash for refundable ones. The remaining passengers' tickets are unaffected. This must be done by calling 1 (855) 234-9809 — the self-service tool cancels the entire booking rather than individual passengers.

Scenario 5 — Partial use of an award ticket. If you cancel unused segments of a partially flown award itinerary — for example, you flew the outbound but want to cancel the return — the SkyMiles for the unused segment are redeposited to your SkyMiles account at no charge, along with any cash fees attributable to the cancelled segment. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 for partial award cancellations, as these require agent handling in most cases.

Four Rules That Govern Partial Refunds at Delta Air Lines

Rule 1 — Base fare partial refunds almost never produce cash on non-refundable tickets. When Delta Air Lines returns part of a non-refundable fare — whether from a flight change or a segment cancellation — the return comes as a eCredit, not cash. Cash partial refunds on non-refundable tickets occur only in two situations: when Delta Air Lines cancels or significantly disrupts a segment, or when a documented exception such as illness or military orders is approved.

Rule 2 — Add-on fees follow different rules than the base fare. Prepaid baggage fees and seat fees are governed by their own refund policies, which are separate from the ticket fare rules. Some seat fees are non-refundable regardless of the reason for cancellation; others are refunded when Delta Air Lines cancels the flight. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 to get a line-by-line breakdown of which fees on your booking are refundable before submitting any cancellation.

Rule 3 — Cancelling one passenger from a group booking requires phone handling. The self-service cancellation tool at delta.com cancels the entire booking — all passengers and all segments. To cancel only one traveler while preserving the rest of the reservation intact, call 1 (855) 234-9809. Agents can split the booking and process the individual cancellation without affecting the other passengers.

Rule 4 — Partial refunds on disrupted itineraries require proactive action. Delta Air Lines does not automatically calculate and issue partial refunds for unused segments after a disruption. You must request the refund explicitly — either through the online refund form at delta.com or by calling 1 (855)

234-9809. Failing to request promptly does not eliminate the right, but delays resolution significantly.

How to Claim a Partial Refund from Delta Air Lines: Step by Step

Step 1: Identify exactly which partial refund scenario applies to your booking.

Review your booking details and match your situation to one of the five scenarios above: fare difference from a change, unused disrupted segment, add-on fee refund, individual passenger cancellation, or partial award cancellation. Each has a different process. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 if you are unsure which scenario fits your specific case.

Step 2: Do not cancel the entire booking if you only need to cancel part of it.

This is the most common mistake in partial refund situations. Cancelling the full reservation through My Trips forfeits all segments and all passengers simultaneously. For partial cancellations — one segment, one passenger, or unused segments after a disruption — always call 1 (855) 234-9809 first to ensure the right scope is cancelled.

Step 3: For fare difference credits — complete the flight change first.

Change your ticket to the less expensive flight through My Trips at delta.com or by calling 1 (855) 234-9809. The eCredit for the fare difference is issued automatically once the change is confirmed. Do not cancel and rebook separately — that eliminates the credit and may result in a worse outcome.

Step 4: For disrupted segment refunds — call before accepting any rebooking.

When Delta Air Lines disrupts a connection and offers an alternative, call 1 (855) 234-9809 before accepting or declining the rebooking. An agent can calculate the refund value of the unused segments and compare it to the cost of the alternative itinerary — helping you make an informed decision rather than accepting the first offer presented.

Step 5: Submit the partial refund request through the correct channel.

For add-on fee refunds and unused segment refunds, submit at delta.com under the refund section, selecting 'partial refund' or 'unused segment' as the reason. Include your booking confirmation number and specify exactly which segments or fees you are claiming. For individual passenger cancellations, call 1 (855) 234-9809 — these cannot be processed online.

Step 6: Track the refund and follow up at 10 business days.

Cash partial refunds process within 7 to 10 business days. eCredits appear within hours. If either does not arrive within the expected window, call 1 (855) 234-9809 with your refund case number and booking confirmation for a status update from an agent with direct system access.

Getting a Refund on Delta Air Lines Add-On Fees: Baggage, Seats, and Upgrades

Prepaid baggage fees paid at the time of booking are generally refunded when Delta Air Lines cancels the associated flight. When you voluntarily cancel a refundable ticket, prepaid baggage fees are also refunded. For non-refundable tickets cancelled voluntarily, baggage fees are typically included in the eCredit value rather than refunded separately as cash.

Seat upgrade fees — for Comfort+, preferred seats, or exit row seats purchased separately — follow similar rules. Delta Air Lines-initiated cancellations trigger a full refund of seat fees. Voluntary cancellations of refundable tickets refund seat fees. Voluntary cancellations of non-refundable tickets may include seat fees in the eCredit or may treat them as non-refundable separately — the specific treatment depends on how the fee was structured at purchase. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 to get a clear breakdown before cancelling if you have significant add-on fees at stake.

When a Partial Refund at Delta Air Lines Is Cash vs. eCredit

The form of the partial return — cash or eCredit — follows the same logic as full refunds at Delta Air Lines. Cash is returned when: the ticket is refundable, Delta Air Lines cancelled or significantly disrupted the flight, or a documented exception is approved. A eCredit is returned when: a non-refundable ticket is voluntarily changed to a cheaper flight, or a non-refundable ticket is partially cancelled under standard policy.

If you believe your partial refund situation qualifies for cash but Delta Air Lines has issued a eCredit instead — for example, after a disrupted connection where unused segments were processed incorrectly — call 1 (855) 234-9809 and ask a refund specialist to review the original circumstances. Agents have authority to convert incorrectly issued credits to cash when the underlying situation warrants it.

5 Common Problems Getting a Partial Refund from Delta Air Lines — and Solutions

Problem 1: You cancelled the entire booking instead of just one segment.

Call 1 (855) 234-9809 immediately. If the cancellation was recent, an agent may be able to reverse it and reinstate the booking before the seats are released to other passengers. If reversal is not possible, the agent can advise on the best path forward given the full cancellation that occurred.

Problem 2: Delta Air Lines disrupted your connection but only refunded the cancelled leg, not the full unused value.

Call 1 (855) 234-9809 with your original booking confirmation and the disruption details. When Delta Air Lines cancels a segment and you choose not to continue traveling, all unflown segments are refundable — not just the cancelled one. Ask the agent to review the full itinerary and calculate the correct partial refund amount.

Problem 3: Your add-on baggage fee was not included in the eCredit after a voluntary cancellation.

Call 1 (855) 234-9809 with your booking confirmation and the receipt for the baggage fee purchase. The agent can confirm whether the fee was processed separately or included in the eCredit, and can issue a correction if the fee was omitted from the credit calculation.

Problem 4: You need to cancel one passenger from a group booking but the website cancelled everyone.

Call 1 (855) 234-9809 immediately. If the full-group cancellation is recent, an agent may be able to reverse it and reinstate the remaining passengers. Going forward, always call for individual passenger cancellations — never use the self-service tool for partial group changes.

Problem 5: The fare difference credit from a flight change is less than expected.

The eCredit reflects the difference between the base fares — it does not include taxes and fees, which are separate components. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 for a detailed breakdown of the original fare, the new fare, and exactly what components produced the credit amount.

Frequently Asked Questions

Does Delta Air Lines give partial refunds?

Not in the traditional sense — but several scenarios produce a partial return: fare difference credits from flight changes, unused segment refunds after disruptions, add-on fee refunds, and individual passenger cancellations from group bookings. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 to identify which applies to your booking.

Can I get a partial refund if I only use part of my Delta Air Lines ticket?

If Delta Air Lines disrupts a connection and you choose not to continue, you are entitled to a refund on all unflown segments. For voluntary partial use — flying the outbound but cancelling the return — a eCredit is issued for the unused return value. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 to process a partial cancellation on a used itinerary.

Can I cancel just one passenger from a Delta Air Lines group booking?

Yes, but only through phone — the self-service tool cancels all passengers simultaneously. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 and ask an agent to cancel the individual passenger while preserving the rest of the booking.

Are prepaid baggage fees refundable on Delta Air Lines?

Yes, when Delta Air Lines cancels the associated flight. For refundable ticket voluntary cancellations, baggage fees are also refunded. For non-refundable voluntary cancellations, baggage fees may be included in the eCredit. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 to confirm what applies.

If I change to a cheaper Delta Air Lines flight, do I get the difference back?

Yes — as a eCredit for non-refundable tickets, or as cash for refundable tickets. The credit equals the exact fare difference and is issued automatically when the change is confirmed. Call 1 (855) 234-9809 if the credit does not appear within 24 hours of the change.

How do I request a partial refund from Delta Air Lines for unused segments?

Submit at delta.com under the refund section, specifying 'unused segment' and including your booking confirmation number. For disruption-related partial refunds, call 1 (855) 234-9809 directly — agents can calculate the correct unused segment value and initiate the refund immediately.
